A Evenutual Display-Venus the Evenus Star-Justice and the Meem.
[Providence Journal.]

VENUS is evening star. She easily wins the first place on the August planetary annals, for she has fully entered upon her period of visibility, and is one of the chief actors in the incidents that diversify the month, taking a prominent part in five of them. She is in conjunction with three planets, a star, and the moon. Venus will be, without question, the most interesting star in the heavens from the present time until the end of the year; for the distance between the planet and the sun is constantly increasing as she oscillates on her eastward course farther from the solar domain. This movement will continue main. This movement will continue antil the 8th of December, when reaching her greatest elongation, or most distant point from the sun, she commences to retrace her steps towards the great central orb.

Therefore one of the most charmi sages of planetary lore, written in characters of gold on the blue vault that moircles the earth, is unfolded on aless nights for the observation of the student of the stars.

Unfortunately, our sister-planet does not take on at present her most favorble aspect on account of her rapidly-increasing southern declination.

Intelligent observers have not failed to notice that the further south the sun is the aborter is the path he describes in the heavens, and consequently the shorter the day. For the same reason, when Venus is far to the south of the equator her path in the heavens folws the same law, and her stay above the horizon is correspondingly les-sened. The result is that though the distance between Venus and the sun is constantly increasing, she sets only about an hour after the sun through August, September, and a part of October. On the 1st of November she sets two hours later than the sun, and on the 1st of December the winter sky will be beautiful from her bright presence for three hours after the disappearance of the sun. But as the twi-light shortens with the shortening days, and the brilliancy and size of the evening star increase with her approach to the earth, she will be more easily seen, and will be far more lovely while the autumnal months fulfil their course.

On the 1st of the month there is only a difference of ten minutes in the time of setting of Jupiter and Venus, the difference in time quickly vanishes, in the onward march of Venus, for, on the 6th, she overtakes Jupiter, the conjunction taking place at 2 o'clock in the morning, Venus being 26' south. The at their nearest point, but they will be near enough together on the evening of the 5th to form a lovely picture in the glowing twilight. On the evening of the 6th the planets will have changed places, Venus being then on the east.
On the 8th, at 10 o'clock in the afternoon, Venus is in conjunction with Mercury, being at the time 3 degrees 42 minutes north. It will be remembered that on the 17th of July the same planets were in conjunction. They were then both moving eastward, and Mercury, the swift-footed, overtook and passed his fair rival in the race. He has since reached his eastern limit, and, retracing his steps, again meets and passes Venus as he draws nearer to included within so short a space of JUPITER is evening star. We award to him the second rank, as this is the last time in which he will hold the place of evening star during the present year. The conunction of Jupiter and Venus on the 6th has been described. On the 27th, at 6 o'clock in the morn-

SATURN is morning star, and by far the most interesting of the three planets that precede the sun. He rises, on the 1st, about 2 o'clock, and when August closes makes his appearance just after midnight. He is now a lovely object to reward the gaze of the observer in the small hours of the morning. The mysterious rings are open to their widest extent, the planet is drawing nearer perihelion, and is also approach-ing the earth. By the last of Septem-ber he will be above the horizon at half-past 10 o'clock, and will not only be delightful to behold with the unaided eye, but will be in a rare position for telescopic research.

On the 5th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Saturn is in close conjunction with Mu Geminorum, a star of the third magnitude in Gemini, being 4' south. On the 6th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, he overtakes Mars. The planets are in conjunction, Saturn being 1 de-

MARS is morning star. Besides be ing in conjunction with Saturn on the 6th, he is also very near Mu Geminorum. Thus Mars, the star, and Saturn are almost in line, the star being very near Saturn. A small telescope will, however, reveal the actors in the scene in near approach, and the exhibition will amply repay the efforts required to get up so early in the morn-

General Grant having expressed the wish that his friend Dr. Newman should conduct the services over his remains, this arrangement will be carried out. Dr. Newman is a native of New York State, born in 1826. From 1869 to 1874 Dr. Newman was chaplain of the United States Senate. Later Grant made him Inspector of Consulates, an office created for the purpose. In this capacity he spent two years abroad, extending his trip through Palestine. When he returned he resumed ministerial work in his own denomination, but on the resignation of Dr. Davis, of the Madison-Avenue Congregational church, New York, consented to occupy the pulpit. His salary was $10,000, with fees perhaps amounting to as much again. The dispute in the church which resulted in Dr. Newman's resignation is fresh in the public recollection.

Before the Congregationalists of Madison-Avenue Church had settled the question as to whether or not they ought to have a Methodist pastor Dr. Newman went to California, where he provoked much criticism by making an extravagant eulogy on a lad of sixteen, the only child of ex-Governor (now

LOUIS RIEL'S TRIAL.

His Lawrers Bring Up the Insanity Plea, and the Prisoner Objects. A Regina (N. W. T.) special says Dr. Ray, attending physician at Beau-fort Asylum, Quebec, during Riel's confinement, and Dr. Clarke, medical superintendent of the Ontario Lunatic Asylum, who gave evidence to-day as to Riel's insanity, interviewed the prisoner yesterday morning. He im-pressed them as a religious crank.

Eight Crown witnesses were exam ined, giving most direct evidence against moon is in conjunction with Neptune on the 4th, at 3h. 49m, P. M., being shown to be the leader. There seems

Mr. Brown put in twenty documents signed by him, all of which were directed to the half-breeds and Indians, informing them of his success at Duck lake and Fish creek and words at D to raid the forts and stores and to capture the police ammunition and arms and join the rebels as soon as possible. Riel was known to be the leader of the government and Gabriel Dumont the director of military movements. Riel se-lected the ground for the defence at Batoche. Riel's motives in the rebellion his treatment during and subsequent to the Red-River rebellion. One document found among Riel's papers contained a draft of his foreign policy to be adopted after he captured Canada from Great Britain. He was going to give the Irish people of the United States one seventh of the country, and provide for the Hungarians, Bavarians, Jews, and Poles. Another document proclaimed the rottenness of the Church of Rome, and declared his intention of establishing a new religion.

but nothing new was elicited from his evidence except that he took the credit for ordering the charge at Batoche, and deemed Riel a religious crank.

Major Crozier swore that his con mand was fired on first at Duck lake. One witness testified how Riel offered to go to any place the Dominion Government desired, if the Government would indemnify him.

A remarkable scene occurred during space to intervene between two heaven- questions. Counsel admitted that there servers; Saturn is superb with his wideopen rings, and the day of Martian importance nears the dawn.

Riel persisted, and asked to have the counsel discharged. He would con-duct the case. The legal authorities voted, and the Court-ruled that counsel should defend him. It is expected that further quarrels will result in their abandonment of the defence. FOR THE DEFENCE. The case for the defence began this morning, counsel examining Philip Garneau, secretary of Riel's Council, and Fathers Andre and Fourmand, of Batoche. Garnesu's evidence showed Riel's strange conduct during the re-bellion. He proclaimed himself a great prophet, and prophesied daily. He proclaimed his intention of conquering Canada, Great Britain, France, and Italy, lawsuit concerning a man who had acted unpleasantly. The answer was, "He was so cross that when he called up the cows at milking-time it made the milk sour." Probably this poor fellow has dyspepsia. Story of a Man Who Lost His Memory Through an Accident. [Denver News.]

The following remarkable story was told to a News reporter yesterday by cumstances which befell him. story was as follows: I was a build-ing contractor in St. Louis for a numoutskirts of the city, and a dear little wife and one child, and was as happy and contented as a man could be who had as a man could be who had everything one could want in this world. The chain of events which altered all this was the most peculiar, and I doubt whether you have ever heard of anything so strange. One day whilst upon the scaffolding of a building I was erecting a heavy storm of wind arose, and before I could descend some of the supports gave way, and I was precipitated to the ground, a distance of forty feet, striking upon my head. For a long time everything was a blank. From what I have since learned, however, it seems that I hovered for weeks between life and death, and when I finally recovered from the physical injuries I had received my mind was entirely gone. At times I was so violent that it became tution I do not know, but escape I did, that potassium permanganate ever, but, strange to say, my memory was entirely gone and the past was all a blank. The loving wife and child, the beautiful home and friends, all were as if they had never existed. It was, perhaps, three months after my arrival that I became acquainted with a young lady living on California street, near Fifteenth. In a short time we were en-gaged and the wedding followed soon after. On the very night of the wedding, however, while walking on Fitteenth street, I was felled by a heavy blow on the head from a footpad and was carried home insensible.

It was some days before I recovered, when, strange to say, the memory of my old and other life returned. Oh! the horror and agony of the moment. I had deserted a good wife, innocently, tie of duty and love. I fought off the horrible temptation, however, and summoned up courage to see the woman I had so unintentionally wronged. She came into the room where I was lying and I shell room where I was lying and I shell room where I was lying thing sould be summer thing sould be summer than the best physicians are thing sould be summer than the best physicians are thing sould be summer than the best physicians are thing sould be summer than the best physicians are thing sould be summer to be sum to adopt the cowardly expedient of came into the room where I was lying, and I shall never forget the painful scene that ensued. "Oh! Charles!" she said, coming up as if to caress me. Then followed a look of wounded love and pride as I turned away coldly, with a guilty feeling mixed largely with fear. "Am I not your wife? she pleaded in piteous tones, "Why do you treat me se?"

Finally I told her the whole dreadful story. With blanched face and staring eyes she sat like a statue through it all With blanched face and staring and then, giving one mighty shrick, fell to the floor in a swoon. The next day she left the city, and in spite of every effort to find her whereabouts for a week I was compelled to abandon the search. I have written home to St. Louis and shall leave Denver to-night. It will be as if I had arisen from the dead when my dear ones see me.

A Cowpens (Ga.) special says: This place is divided into two little factions which threaten a vendetta. The trou-ble grows out of the abduction of a young girl by her lover. Henry Whitaker was enamored of Miss Kate Stallings, fifteen years old. The alliance did not meet the approval of Katie's parents. Whitaker determined not to be thwarted. Arrangements were made for the nuptials at the house of a friend, and a minister was secured. The young lovers slipped off from school, but a watchful brother of the maiden had noticed their departure and gave pursuit. As the services were about to begin he arrived at the gate, forbade the cere-mony, and demanded his sister. The young lovers escaped by the back door, but were pursued. The groom defended the girl with a knife, and barely missed cutting the throat of the brother. A friend of the groom, Pat. Weeks, came to his assistance, and with uplifted knife held Stallings in subjection until the levers escaped. Before the couple could find another minister the groom was arrested for ab-duction. While in the clutches of the duction. While in the clutches of the law the girl was sent he knew not where. He gave a bond on the charge of abduction, but subsequently a warrant for assault with intent to kill caused him to decamp. The next day Mr. Tem Whitaker came up from Trough Shoals to thrash Stallings for the affront offered to his brother in opposing the alliance. The expedition resulted in a fine of $20 being imposed on Whitaker by Justice Tanner. The excitement has divided the community into two factions, bitterly hostile to each other. Ten applications for warrants were made to Mr. Tanner, and half a dozen affairs of honor are pending.

FRIGHTFUL CASE OF A COLORED

I contracted a fearful case of blood-poison in 1883. I was treated by some of the best physicians in Atlanta. They used the old remedies of Merenry and Potash, which brought on rheumatism and impaired my digestive organs. Every joint in me was swollen and full of pain. I was in a horrible condition. When I had been given up to die my physicians, who had seen the workings of the medicine in other cases, thought it would be a splendid time to test the virtues of Swift's Specific. When I commenced taking 8. S. S. the physician said I could not live two weeks under the ordinary treatment. He commenced to give me the medicine strictly according to directions, which I continued for several months. I took nothing else, and commenced to improve from the first. Occasionally I would have a backset from imprudence. Soon the rheumatism left me, my appetite became all right, and the ulcers, which the doctor said were the most frightful he had ever seen, began to heal, and by the 1st of October, 1884. I was a well man again. I am stronger now than I ever was before, and weigh more. I have not failed to report for duty since that time, being engaged in the oll-warepouse of Chess-Carley Company. I have been, and still am, doing some of the hardest work any man ever did, and an ready to answer any question that may be asked concerning this case. Swift's Specific has saved me from an early grave.
